Andrew Forsyth

Sir Robert McAlpine

Dear Andrew,

I saw the Senior Construction Manager role at Sir Robert McAlpine for the new Leeds city centre residential scheme and wanted to get in touch. I have spent the last five years at Balfour Beatty delivering large-scale mixed-use and residential projects in Yorkshire, and the complexity and profile of McAlpine's build programme is the kind of work I want to be doing next.

My most recent project was a £38 million mixed-use development in Leeds. 142 apartments and 6 retail units. Which I brought in three weeks ahead of programme, saving the client £95,000 in prelim costs. I managed a site team of 14 direct staff and 85+ subcontractors, coordinated 14 road closures with Leeds City Council highways, and maintained a zero lost-time injury record across 2.1 million man-hours over three consecutive projects. Before Balfour Beatty, I ran a £24 million, 96-unit housing scheme at Kier in Salford where I won back-to-back NHBC Pride in the Job Quality Awards and cut concrete supply costs by £140,000 through a regional batching plant switch.

I hold the SMSTS, NEBOSH National Certificate in Construction Health and Safety, and a CSCS Black Card. I am a CIOB member and have a BSc in Construction Management from Leeds Beckett. I would welcome the chance to discuss how my experience delivering on programme and budget, and my safety track record, could support the project.

Best regards,

Graham Mitchel
